So you want to know why God sacrificed himself for us due to a rule he made?

God gave us free will. He didn't want to create beings that would just mindlessly obey everything he said, because that is not the essence of true love. True love would necessitate someone making the choice to love someone else. Yeah, He knew we would sin, but that came as a result of His giving us free will. And He had a plan for redemption that would be fulfilled through Jesus. (More on that plan in a second).

"But why would He do that?! He is GOD! He could have done it in a way that doesn't involve suffering and all that!"
I don't know. He is God and that's the way He chose to do it. Just because things happened in a way that involves suffering doesn't mean that that's not the way they happened. Just because cancer is painful and I don't like that doesn't mean that it doesn't exist. I would prefer to believe that I am a millionaire, because that sounds nicer than the fact that I'm a poor college student, but that doesn't make me a millionaire.

"But why did He have to sacrifice Himself?"

Humans understand stuff in terms of justice. If someone does something wrong, the right thing is form them to receive what they justly deserve -- a punishment. Humans, because we are really messed up and sinful, deserve Hell.

"But I think Hell is overkill and wrong and I don't deserve that because I am a good person!"

Well, again, that's not up to us. Should a criminal pick their punishment? God is infinitely perfect and no matter how good we are, we don't even come close to that. We deserve Hell. But God loves us. So He had/has a plan to keep us from going there. All we have to do is accept it.
In the OT, God's system worked as follows. There are rules. You break any of those rules, you fall short of God's perfect standard, and you deserve Hell. God knows we will all break them, but the point is that they show us our NEED for God. They show us that we are not perfect. They draw us towards God. If you break those rules, God prescribes a sacrifice of an animal as atonement. The animal is a scapegoat that takes the punishment we deserve. The animal serves as an object of justice. (This puts the whole picture into a context that we as humans understand.) The animal sacrifice is, importantly, symbolic. It paints a picture for Christ's sacrifice that will eventually follow.

Once the animal was sacrificed, it's blood was then poured over the "mercy seat" on the ark of the covenant. The ark of the covenant was a gold box that housed the plates of the ten commandments, Aaron's rod that blossomed, and manna. These items represented our sin. (Google it.) The blood over the mercy seat was symbolic of that blood covering our sins so that they are no longer seen - atoning for our sins. But none of those animals were perfect; none of them could serve as an eternal, ultimate sacrifice that would last permanently, for all time.
Flash forward centuries: Christ is crucified on the cross. Christ is God incarnate, a perfect, stainless sacrifice. God died in the form of Christ on the cross to fulfill the OT law for all time. He took on the punishment that we deserved.

"But how? And why?"

In the moment that Christ was sacrificed on the cross, God turned His back on Christ and Christ gave up His rights as God. (Phil 2:5-8) Christ suffered in that moment in a supernatural way that we can't understand. This was illustrated when Christ cried out from the cross, "Eloi, eloi, lama sabachthani?" ("My God, My God, why have You forsaken me?") This allowed Christ's death on the cross to be more than just another crucifixion - but a truly eternal sacrifice.

The why? This entire outplay of history, from animal sacrifices, to Christ's sacrifice, was all illustrative of one thing: God's love. God was willing to take on Himself the horrendous punishment that we deserve, to see that justice is satisfied, in order to demonstrate His deep love for us ("Greater love has no one than this: to lay down one's life for one's friends" - John 15:13). God did this to pave an easy way to relationship with Him, despite our sin, in light of His love. All we have to do is ask that Christ's death apply for our sins.

legit question to all the Christians in this thread, can you answer >>273905424

I'm legitimately curious as to the metaphysical implications here. Can the soul feel pain? If so, why is it that pain can be blocked by chemical agents or deformities which act upon the body, and presumably not upon the soul? If not, will your god create physical bodies for those he sends to hell so that they can feel the pain of fires?

God in all his power recreates your body in hell to be indestructible/endlessly and rapidly regenerating. He also alters your nerves to be 1 trillion times more sensitive to pain. There will be no numbing to the pain due to shock or getting used to it after a few million years. Christ-cucks are considered people of the Book.
However most of them catholics and christcucks that believe that God has a son and is a man will find themselves faced with harsh punishment, God only knows which punishment it will be.
Why bad, because by believing God has a son, you believe there are 2 Gods thus associating another being to God... great sin indeed.

Alternatively, the soul can't feel pain on earth, only the body which can be affected by medical conditions or drugs. Perhaps hellfire is the only thing that can inflict pain on the soul, and the soul which is used to being invulnerable to pain otherwise suffers much more than a body exposed to pain since a physical body is built for a world with many types of harm.

What you are conveniently leaving out is that in the LAST DAYS life is going to be really bad for good people because we will inherently be disgusted by what we're witnessing in the world around us, and we are literally powerless to stop it. Christcuckery offers no protection against race mixing, immigration, leftism. If anything the majority of Christians support these things and this is the natural course of christcuckery. Also, for all you Bible-confused-atheists out there...

Hell was never designed for you. As you keep asking "HURR WHY DOES A LOVING GOD SEND ME TO HELL IF I DON'T LOVE HIM!?!?"

Well that's because He doesn't want to be with you in the end if you don't want to be with him. You enjoy your free will, don't you? You appreciate not being a puppet, right? In the end, Satan and his army were only to go to hell. Unfortunately, mankind got involved and decided to have free will. With this, you have to choose who you want to be with forever. A loving God who wants you to live a non-degenerate life of purity....or spend time with the one who you decide to serve. In the end, you only can have one master. You are always going to serve a king. Will you serve the King of Life, or the King of Death? You choose. There are only two places to go to in the end.

>you are Christian
Glad for you! Just hope you know Jesus is the Messiah and a Prophet, he is not the son of God. God wants us to tell you that he has no Son, and he is has not created (God, what you call the Father, which is wrong, it’s the Creator).
>Jesus gave his life
Evil romans and jews conspired to crucify him, but God ascended Christ in the Heavens, and made a person look like Jesus and that person was crucified.
Source : The Quran.
Dont believe what the pagan catholics try to sell to people, that is wrong, he never died for your sin. You still need to do good deeds, and be a good christian in order to access to Heaven.
>your life is bad
It could be a test. One thing i noticed, when God loves you, he will put you into tests, to test your love for him, it does not mean you are bad, it only means it is a necessary step to fix something/improve in you and to test your faith. All the Prophets have suffered greatly even tho they were loved by God and they loved God back. It’s just how it is, this earth is a test, and a test is not supposed to be all happy smooth riding.
>however
Once you see through the test of faith, you will notice that God has amazing ways, and when you think about the steps that you passed through you will be amazed on God’s glory and God’s perfection through your own experience through life (good and bad experiences).
>last days though on believers
100% correct. However God always said he would protect his people even in the last days, many will be misled tho.
God will always protect you even in the last days.
>dont want eternal hell
The outcome of this earthly life will give us the answer, on Judgement Day, a day of 50000 years where everyone will be resurrected a 2nd time to face judgment, on that day everyone will come back and face Judgment.

If God shares the characteristics of Jesus then hell simply does not exist because no loving being would ever send someone there. If there is an all powerful God that knows everything that every human will do before they are born and there is also a hell that this God sends people too for being naughty then that God is evil. He already knew they would be bad and get sent to hell yet he created them anyways? That is not the actions of a loving or wise deitiy. Idk how this has been a debate for so long

Please, I've studied all main religions. I literally had to during my years of highschool. All other concepts of religions out there are either derived from self-pleasure, drugs, historical figures that wanted to be considered as deities, and honest-to-easy debunkable information out there. Jesus of Nazareth is the most evident-based God there is. Even National Geographic explained that they found the blood-stained cloth that was claimed to have wrapped around Jesus and the evolution-believing scientists that put a solvent on the blood of the cloth shit their pants when they saw the blood coming to life. The blood cells don't die on the tunic, and millionaire-funded science labs took turns studying the cloth and then found out that there were only chromosomes found from a mother but for the first time in history, no chromosomes were found from a father.

Do your own fucking homework. How much proof of a God do you need even after liberal scientists say that they not believe in Jesus? Google that documentary, you lazy fuck. Give a shit about actually finding out the truth if you want to consider yourself redpilled so much.

>strawmaning and big-brain-fedoratipping this hard okay first of all, I'm aware of WHAT makes the sky blue and the grass green.
The chart is asking if God can create a world with free will, but without evil. Since the Bible describes him as omnipotent, we assume he can. Next it asks "If he can create such a world, why didn't he?"
Now WE may assume such a world is "Better" or "More suited" to us, but WE are not God. God has his own motivations to create what he created, and we can assume such motivations would be DRASTICALLY different than ours considering he is an all knowing omnipotent being.
What I was arguing was that asking why God would not create a world with free will and without evil is LIKE asking why did God now make grass blue, and the sky green. It's pointless to ask such questions since we are not God, and do not have his motivations and knowledge.

On youtube, I believe that you can find the documentary of the study where European science labs kept "taking turns" (borrowing the cloth for way to long from eachother before the military forced other labs to get their turn) where it shows that the dried blood actually "comes to life". You can see it for yourself. It's actually very interesting. The scientists in Italy have never seen anything like it. Just google it, it isn't that hard to find. Took my grandfather 2 minutes to find it and he WAS an atheist for 64 years before he watched that.

Man did that to themselves when they ate the fruit of knowledge. Before they were more pure, virtuous, and innocent like good puperinos. After disobeying God and eating the fruit, now they have enough knowledge to think themselves smart and arrogant enough to question or reject God, but not intelligent enough to truly understand God’s infinite wisdom. Look at this thread for example, with all the people trying to say God’s behaviors are immoral or don’t make sense.

You fucking insects, you are like dung beetles trying to understand how a car engine works, or why humans engage in behaviors like staring at screens. What level of hubris is it to think you know better than God on what is love or justice?

That is why faith exists. We all have faith in something, even you. Every human, the Bible says, has the premonition to believe in God. It is "science", theories, the pride of man, and sin...which allows you to witness the beauty of the world and not see it being the product of God's work.

As we see brilliant paintings, we also know there has to be a painter behind every painting. So it too is logical to see the 3D painting of the world we live in and say "A God has to also be responsible for creating the art I walk upon." Otherwise evolution is nothing but a bunch of self-exploding buckets of paint that somehow developed over X amount of years and became self-driven to create itself into the mona lisa.

>best way to know the presence of God
Is to center yourself towards your heart (spiritual heart) and ask God to show you a sign of his presence, you can be precise with the sign, you can ask God to do something for you in your life that seems impossible to be. And see the answer, God will reveal himself to you and only you. this is how he shows himself and not to everyone like you are watching some ufo some shit...

And here is the famous atheist's favorite sentence after being given a hefty explanation of what faith is.
My dear anon, you have not only committed a crime of massive implying implications, but you are massively incorrect to think that I, personally, do not seek God. You imply that because that is what YOU personally do.

I speak to Jesus morning, afternoon, and evening. I speak to him about my struggles, my wins, my losses. I speak to him as if he is right next to me. I am personally sorry you do not have this relationship. It really, if anything, is a cope for you to believe that you have no father who designed you other than your biological one. However, you are fulfilling prophecy from the Bible as people are said to say in the end days "And where is this God of yours, is He not due? Where is the proof?" As written in Revelations.

You have lots of lurking to do with your

If reason and logic are not a thing which the Christian god originally desired man to possess, and man came to possess them through the Christian devil? then it stands to reason the Christian god would want to stifle man's use of them as much as possible, in favor of obeying edicts.

Of course but it is more like personal evidences for each person in a one on one basis. Each one receives his absolute proofs when the person asks for it.

In the course of my life, i asked about 10 people to do the :”Ask God to reveal himself to you”. It was a 10/10 hit. They all got their absolute proof, undeniable proofs.
Even tho they received their signs some of the 10 did not want to believe in God.
Some people are like that, even if they see God in front of them they wont believe....
Sad but true..

FOR ANONS WHO ASK: HURR WHY ARE WE SO EVIL AND WHY IS EVIL A THING:

It is no different than parents having a child. If you have a child, any logical parent would want to have the best for that child. You take care of them, you nurture them, you teach them right from wrong...and after all those years of love...let's say that one day the child leaves and then goes on a massive murder spree, rape spree, nukes a city, and then kills as many dogs and cats that they see on their way home...

Is that because of the parents, or is that free will of the child? the actions of a creation are not due to the nature or actions of a parent/creator when put into this example/perspective.

God wants me to strife for knowledge, but demands blind faith and denies me knowledge of basically everything, including knowledge of his own existence, unless I am to become his tool to enforce his will on Earth (prophets, saints). God wants me to strife for knowledge, but he literally banned first humans from heaven after they gained knowledge from the tree. So, he wants me to pursue knowledge, but only parts of knowledge designated for me to learn and not literally everything that is to know? I evaluate this as a form of deceivery.
